Solutions for the wind industry Phoenix Contact and JMS Energy announce partnership

Middletown, Pa. – JMS Energy, Inc., and Phoenix Contact have joined forces to deliver advanced solutions for renewable energy. JMS Energy will install and support Phoenix Contact’s solutions for the renewable energy space. The collaboration brings together the expertise of both companies—JMS Energy’s extensive experience in wind farm production and Phoenix Contact’s 100-year history in electrical engineering and automation.

“This partnership aims to modernize the renewable energy sector with its cutting-edge solutions,” said Nick Gerhard, president of JMS Energy. “Combining JMS Energy’s experience in wind energy generation and Phoenix Contact’s knowledge of industrial automation will help renewable energy producers optimize their energy production and reduce their environmental footprint.”

“JMS Energy and Phoenix Contact will focus on our respective talents and resources, creating a range of integrated products, services, and solutions for the renewable energy space,” said Deralee Bowlin, vertical market manager for energy, Phoenix Contact USA. “This commitment to building sustainable solutions for renewable energy producers has made the two companies among the most trusted partners in the industry.”
